CLASS VI

CHAPTER -1

COMPUTER LANGUAGES

INTRODUCTION

In our day to day life , we communicate with each other for various purposes through various modes of communication. Have we ever thought of essential requirements of a good communication?
That's the language.
Language is the medium of communication.

What is computer language?

A computer language is method of electronic communication. Computer uses binary or machine language and all digital data used in computer system represented using 0s and 1s.

What is programming language ?

Programming languages consists of a set of codes and instructions through which, a request is made to the system to process a task.